

Museveni, Bashir mend broken fences

It has been kept a top secret but embattled Sudanese president, Omar el Bashir (right) is looking at President Museveni as one of his possible saviors. Since his indictment for war crimes and crimes against humanity in Darfur by the International Criminal Court, Gen. Bashir has been exchanging all manner of envoys President Museveni. The latest we have learnt is that last week, President Museveni sent Foreign Affairs Minister Sam Kutesa to meet Khartoum officials where it is said they discussed this delicate matter. A case of former foes becoming bedfellows.
